Tom and Amy,

My mother's youngest sister Janice died Friday. I think she had a stroke. She had had a stroke several years ago and had been bedridden since. Her kids are Susie Riemer (Tom) and Betsy Cullum (Harold). Daughter Jane died several years ago.

Carol now wants to get into the biofeedback business. She finally ended her therapy sessions last week, and during the last year or 2 of her therapy, she was getting biofeedback. Carol thinks it worked for her, and she has heard stories of great successes from other people. Her sister says it is helping her 8 year old daughter. So Carol wants to buy a machine (about $4000) and get the training (another $2-3000). She is sure she can make enough to pay off the investment within a year or so.

Love, Dad
