

April 26, 2002

Amy: I haven't received your invitation to visit you in Boulder this summer.

Tom: Amy hasn't invited me yet. Has she invited you? If so, do you know when you are going?

I am a little short on money for a trip to Boulder, but I could do it. We're having a new roof put on the house today, Dawn's wedding is in June, and Carol is going to neurofeedback training in New York next week. All big hits on my bank account.

I probably won't retire October 1, as I had planned. I am not yet rich as I need to be. I'll be able to continue working and draw my State pension, so it will be a great opportunity to save up some money.

Dad