

December 7, 2004

Hi,

I did leave personal stuff on my computer, but in an attempt to conceal it, I put it in a folder on my C-drive rather than the My Documents folder. It was a bunch of "MERS Stories", some of which are now on mersdirt.com, and some essays I'd written on politics and economics. I plan some day to create a website for those essays.

The only email I saved was work-related.

We never did get together for dinner. Shirley cancelled and poor Peter was the only one who showed up at Clara's. I need to go to the library tomorrow, and if I remember, I'll stop by her house on Ottawa and see if she is there.

MERS' deadline for complying with my FOIA request on payments to Hardy is coming up soon. Should be fun. I found in my notes that he charged $30,000 for the retreat he conducted and $1000 each for the employee evaluations.

Steve

--- Helen Constan <hls2c3molly_toby@yahoo.com> wrote:

> Hi Steve,
> Looks like other things are occupying your time > besides wild parties when your wife is away! You > are > certainly managing to stay engaged.
> I was working on my records policy and reading a lot > about records online. I was just wondering, did you > leave a lot on your work computer that is personal, > or > in your email? I don't have very much except a Gale > file, which I should have deleted a while ago.
> I wonder if Shirley is busy with MERS too. Did you > ever go out to dinner?
> Helen
>