Hi,

I had a disaster at the art show Saturday in Old Town here in Lansing. All was going well until about 3:00. I'd sold 4 pictures. At about 3:00, a wind gust toppled my display, breaking the glass in about 15 pictures and banging up several frames. This is getting to be an expensive hobby. I think what happened is my A-frame closed up. I didn't have it braced at the bottom.

Before the crash, I did find out that a picture of my display from last year at the REO Town art market is on their website, www.reotown.com. When you bring up the site, there is a picture of a REO Town scene at the top. If you hit "refresh", the picture changes. Eventually you will see my A-frame display.
