Laura,

I scanned Grant's letter and attached it. He's trying to hook us into another trip, and doing a good job.

No, we haven't been to see Mom since Christmas and I've only called her once. The day I called, Walter and Susan had been there. She sounded good.

Carol had a heart catherization and a bunch of other heart tests and although her EKG is a little funny, no serious problems were found. They did say she was a little low on magnesium, so she started taking a supplement and thinks it helped. But her blood pressure keeps going up and down, so her doctor put her on blood pressure medicine a couple weeks ago and she thinks that is making her feel bad. Her blood pressure is really low after climbing stairs. All in all, she's about as healthy as any 95 year old woman.

Did you hear I'm officially running for state representative? My campaign website is www.stevharryforstaterep.org. I put a little ad in last Sunday's Lansing State Journal announcing my candidacy and giving my website address. I'm having a good time researching issues and working on the website.

We saw Charlie Wilson's War. It was a lot of fun. I saw Atonement last night while Carol went to P.S. I Love You. Atonement was kind of arty. Long on scenery and short on story.

Due to Carol's health, we haven't made plans to go to Florida.
