(To Shirley Davis)

Yes, it was me who sent Nina the pictures. Snapfish is a neat service - all you have to do is upload some digital pictures and tell them who to send them to. They take care of everything. And it's cheap. I only wish there was a way to send a note with them so the recipient knows who sent them. The pictures are from one of Mom's old picture albums. I know you saw some of them. I've finished putting them on the website - there might be some out there that weren't there when you first looked. Now I have to sit down at a computer with Mom and have her give me some information for captions. The website address is www.stevharryssite.com.

Yes, you and Mom and Nina are invited to our place Christmas eve. If Dayna can bring you, great, or I can fetch you the day before and you can stay over night.

You say Lois has Grandma Rice's picture album? Maybe I can borrow it from her and add those pictures to my website. Better yet, get her to scan them and send me the digital files.
