To Amy:

UPS delivered the goodies not long after we got off the phone. Thanks.

The reception was nice. The Governor wasn't there. Either was anybody we knew, although I recognized some names on name tags. Mostly old people who have money to give away. I was under dressed - khakies and shirt, but didn't feel uncomfortable. Only one other guy was not wearing a suit. The reception was to honor "major donors" to the Red Cross, either blood or money. Hors d'overes were served along with a wine and beer bar. The house was nice. One story. It is in an old wealth neighborhood, surrounded by a lot of houses bigger and fancier than the Governor's.
