

January 9, 2005

Amy,

Yes, I have listened to Split Lip, but only once. I'd made a copy, and the copy seemed to have problems last time I tried, so I've made a new copy. I liked one line in one of the songs that said something like he needed to find a woman who couldn't shoot straight. I am really enjoying the Steely Dan disks. I still like them much better than their more recent stuff. Just last night, we watched the Wanda Sykes DVD. Really liked that, too.

I hadn't heard about your Mom. Tom called a few days ago. He is doing OK, but he's beginning to think that Kelli isn't carrying her share of the load. His speeding tickets actually only cost him about $800, so that is taken care of. He said he has to go through the "purification" course again at the Org. You'd think that if you'd been purified once, you wouldn't have to do it again. He said he has been delivering pizzas for the same store for 10 years now. He works about 35 hours during the week at the Org then delivers pizzas on the weekend. He says he is definitely making the trip to Boulder this summer. I'll try to be there the same time.

We saw "The Life Aquatic with Steve Zissou" last night and enjoyed it. It is the kind of movie that needs to be seen twice to get all the jokes.

Love, Dad